

RAISED THE ELEPHANT.

How South Atlantic's Wooden Pachyderm Was Put on Its Feet.

Moving an elephant is usually accomplished without the use of jacks and an army of workmen, but such was not the case with the big wooden pachyderm that for many years has stood on the beach at South Atlantic, just below Atlantic City, N. J.

THE ELEPHANT READY FOR MOVING.

The waves raised by the big November storm undermined the elephant, and for a time it looked as if the queer structure were done for.

Public spirited citizens came to the rescue, however, and "put the elephant on its feet." This was no easy task, as the elephant weighs many tons and is about fifty feet high. For over a week twenty men labored with jacks and derricks and at last got it into an upright position. Rollers were then placed under the levathan, and it was moved to new foundations.

REYES OF COLOMBIA.

Soldier and Statesman Who Is Here on a Special Mission.

General Rafael Reyes, who recently arrived in this country as "president in campaign" of Colombia—that is, with full powers conferred upon him by President Marroquin to represent the presidential authority—is regarded as one of the ablest men in Colombia.

General Reyes, soldier and statesman, who is a native of Colombia, has always been noted for his intense patriotism. Twice the presidency of his country has been offered to him and as often declined.

As an explorer General Reyes has done more than any other man for South America and was the first to traverse the Amazon from its mouth to its source. On this trip his brother was eaten by cannibals. General Reyes comes to this country as Colombia's forerunner to plead her cause in an endeavor to regain Panama.

SOLDIER AND LAWYER.

Major J. E. Runcie, Who Testified Against General Wood.

Major James E. Runcie, who recently testified before the senate committee on military affairs that General Leonard Wood had inspired a magazine article reflecting on the administration of General Brooke as military governor of Cuba, is a retired army officer and was formerly General Wood's legal adviser.

The article in question, which was not published until after General Wood had succeeded General Brooke at Havana, is said to have greatly incensed General Wood against Runcie.

Major Runcie was graduated from West Point in 1879 and for several years was an instructor at that institution, but as the result of an accident he was retired from the army for physical disability in 1893. When the Spanish war broke out he volunteered and was made major in an Ohio volunteer regiment. He practices law in Havana.

Anita McGee, was at the head of the two thousand nurses in the Spanish-American war, and is planning to take one hundred Yankee nurses to Japan.
